5. The headquarters of the 4 Proletarian Brigade commanded by Lt. Col. Borocan, is located at Knazevac. The strength of the brigade is approximately 1,600 men. It is under the jurisdiction of the 42 Rifle Division, headquarters Nis. The 4 Proletarian Brigade is a training unit. The men remain with it for one year, after which they are transferred to some other unit. The brigade comprises three battalions, each of which is composed of the following:
 - a. Three rifle companies
 - b. One mortar company
 - c. One machine gun company
 - d. One bazooka platoon
 - e. One communications platoon
6. The following units are attached to the brigade headquarters:
 - a. Logistics command (supplied with ten trucks and fifty horses)
 - b. Company of scouts
 - c. Company of automatic weapons
 - d. Communications company
 - e. Anti-chemical warfare platoon
 - f. Artillery battalion, comprising three batteries
7. Each of the three batteries of the artillery battalion is equipped with 45 mm. anti-tank guns, 76 mm. anti-tank guns, and 120 mm. Soviet mortars. Other armaments with which units of the brigade are supplied include German type machine guns MG-42, Soviet Degjatev automatic pistols, Yugoslav mortars and Kragujevac rifles. The communications equipment includes RMM radio apparatus and German telephones.
8. The above brigade was organized during the Partisan wars in World War II, upon the orders of Radomir Babic, currently Lt. Col. General attached to the Advanced Military Academy in Belgrade. After the war, as was the case with all proletarian brigades, it was changed into a proletarian regiment. The 4 Proletarian Brigade again assumed its original title in the early part of 1952.
